The Divine Way of Counting

Second Sunday of Lent

Look up at the sky and count the stars, if you can. Just so...shall your descendants be. - Genesis 15:5

Although these words refer to the promise of countless members who will eventually expand Abraham's family, might they also be imagined as other types of descendants? Could they be the countless blessings that are offered daily by the lives and witness of the saints among us? These stars of compassion and healing shine as beacons of hope in a world that is at once full of beauty and scarred by brokenness.

On a human level, I suspect we can never truly calculate the impact of the holy ones who come together and turn their faces to God. But reckoning is a different story in the heart and memory of God. There, no act of love is ever lost, forgotten or wasted. Like the thousands of stars whose light we have yet to see, so our loving kindness, whether known or unacknowledged, ushers blessing upon blessing out into the universe.
