LIFE OF FAITH—PART 8

Contemplation for every day (Section 2)

Let us not deceive ourselves. Our Lord does not depend on our human undertakings; our most ambitious projects are for him little more than child's play. What he wants are souls; he wants love. He wants everybody to come and enjoy his kingdom for eternity. We have to work a lot on this Earth and we must do our work well, for it is our daily obligations that we have to sanctify. But let us never forget to do everything for his sake. If we were to do our work for ourselves, out of pride, we would produce mere foliage. And in such a leafy tree neither God nor man would find any sweetness.

Then, looking at the withered tree, "the disciples marveled saying: How did the fig tree wither at once?" (Matt. 21:20). The first twelve, who had seen so many of Christ's miracles, are amazed again. Their faith was not yet a flaming faith. So our Lord assured them: "Truly I say to you, if you have faith and never doubt, you will not only do what has been done to the fig tree but even if you say to this mountain, 'Be taken up and cast into the sea,' it will be done" (Matt. 21:21). Christ lays down for us this condition, that we should live by faith, and then we can move mountains. And there are so many things to be moved away...in the world and, first of all, from our hearts. So many obstacles to grace! Let us then have faith, faith with deeds, faith with sacrifice, faith with humility. For it is faith that makes us capable of anything: "And whatever you ask in prayer, you will receive, if you have faith" (Matt. 21:22).

The man of faith can truly assess worldly values. He knows that this life on Earth is, in St. Teresa's phrase, just a single night in a bad inn. Such vision renews his conviction that our time on Earth is a time of work and struggle, a time of purification, to repay that debt owed to divine justice for our sins. He knows too that worldly possessions are but means, and so uses them generously, even heroically.

Faith is not only to be preached. Above all, it is to be practiced. Maybe we are often too weak. When this happens-I am turning again to the Gospels-let us behave like the father of the lunatic boy. He wanted his son to be cured, he hoped Christ would cure him, but he could not bring himself to believe that such happiness was possible. And Jesus, who always demands faith, knowing what was troubling his soul, steps in to help him. "Everything is possible for him who believes" (Mark 9:23). Everything is possible. That man feels his faith is weak, he is afraid that his lack of faith is preventing his son from being cured, and he weeps. Let us not be ashamed of tears—they are the fruit of our love for God, of contrite prayer, of true humility. "And the father of the child cried out with tears and said, I believe! Help my unbelief" (Mark 9:24).
